

No matter what

We are all born,

We all live,

And we all die,

We all have differences, but that makes us all unique,

We are all equal,

Or that's what they said,

And then they judge us,

On our religion, choices, gender, race, opinions, and decision,

But we are all equal,

No matter who we are we can't judge others because of how they look or what they chose to do,

We are all equal,

We are not our reputations,

And no matter what we look like or do we are all equal,

We are all born,

We all live,

And we all die,

So why don't we treat each other right,

Because not matter what happened in the past,

No matter what happened today,

And no matter what happens in the future,

We can't hold ourselves in a higher position,

And we can't push others down,

Because we are all equal.
